

I'm a current 3L, and I'm running for President of Student Government.

The Constitution of the Student Government permits me to run. Isn't that silly? The Constitution also permits SG to amend its own Constitution and Bylaws without any input from students. Ridiculous, huh?

If elected, I will simply work to rewrite the HLS Student Government Constitution and Bylaws into reasonable documents constrained by rationality and common sense. Then, I will hand power over to a deserving 2L who will serve you as President next year. Sound good? Then vote for me.

Here are some things that the current Student Government Constitution and Bylaws permit that I will work to fix:

- At present, the minutes of Student Government General Body Meetings do not need to be disclosed to the student body.
- At present, the bylaws by which the Student Government runs itself do not need to be disclosed to the student body.
- At present, the Student Government may close all of its meetings to the public, including the very students who it is supposed to represent.
- At present, the Student Government may amend its Bylaws and its Constitution without notifying students or seeking their consent. This includes the ability to modify the way that Student Government elections are held.
- At present, the Student Government may, and has recently acted to, substantially raise the barriers to forming a student group without consent of the students.

I will work to change these ridiculous aspects of the Student Government's governance.

I look forward to briefly leading the Student Government and helping to take it to a better, more democratic place.
